The Lighthouse Club International Design for Safety Award

What is it for?

In recognition of the construction industry designer/design team that has contributed the most by design, to eliminating, reducing and mitigating the health and safety risks during construction, cleaning and operation, maintenance and eventual modification/removal of the asset (i.e. for the whole life cycle).

Who can enter?

- Team (maximum of 6 people) or Individual architectural and engineering designers employed by architects, engineering consultants, contractors or client organisations in the construction industry; and
- Individuals or Team Leaders to be a holder of a relevant construction industry degree in architecture, civil or structural engineering or similar that is recognised by a national architectural or engineering institution.

Entry requirements:

- The design was for a real life requirement in the built environment (permanent or temporary works) that was commissioned by a client for architectural or engineering design services for which the entrants' employer was engaged.
- The prime consideration for the award is the evidence provided for the thought process in addressing whole life cycle health and safety issues at the design stage.
- Submissions:
 - All entries to be produced in English language.
 - For entry forms, enquiries and submitting your entry electronically, contact Elaine Man at info@lighthouseclubhk.com.
 - Judging is based on quality of content, not quantity.
 - Submissions should demonstrate the design decisions made to eliminate or mitigate the whole life cycle health and safety risks for the asset that has been designed and how residual risks have been brought to the attention of the contractor/asset owner/operator/asset or facilities management team as appropriate. Evidence may include project documents including drawings, risk registers, risk workshop output, minutes of design meetings, etc. Level of detail provided should be proportionate to the risk and complexity.
 - Submissions demonstrating stakeholder engagement (e.g. architects/consultants engaging with contractors, facilities/asset management teams and vice versa) & use of digital tools may score higher.
- Confidentiality, copyright, and verification:
 - Entrants are responsible for obtaining any necessary written consents from their employers, clients and relevant third parties as necessary to use the materials in their submissions for entry into this competition.
 - Entrants' employers and clients may be contacted for verification purposes.
 - The Lighthouse Club or Lighthouse Club Hong Kong Branch ("LHC") will use the entrants' submissions solely for the purposes of this competition; for publications, conferences, webinars, seminars relating to safety; and for publishing the information provided in the LHC's magazine along with photos of the prize winners and judges' commentary. Accreditation for information provided will be based on the information provided by the entrants. The LHC will not issue entrants' information to third parties except as aforementioned.
- This competition is organised by the Lighthouse Club Hong Kong Branch and is open to entries from around the world.
- Please note that shortlisted entrants may be invited for an interview with the judges (for entrants outside of Hong Kong, this can be via video-link). If invited, interviews will take place in late February/early March 2024.
- Entrants to be available to attend in person the award ceremony at the LHC International Cocktail reception and Safety Leadership Awards at the Garden Lounge, Hong Kong Club, 1 Jackson Road, Central, Hong Kong on 15th March 2024; for team entrants, minimum of Team Leader to be available and present.
